Disclosure Statement Attachment, Question 5
Of
Franklin D. Kramer

While I am appearing individually and am not representing any entity other than myself, I do work with companies that have government contracts and wanted the Committee to have that information. My positions are on the board of directors and/or as a consultant, and are not subcontracts to a specific contract with one exception noted below, but I wanted the Committee to have the information relevant to the period after October 1, 2008.

Lockheed Martin—I was on the Lockheed Martin Strategic Advisory Council (since dissolved) and currently provide consultant advisory services to the company. Lockheed is the largest defense contractor to the United States Government and has other significant contracts with the government. I undertook this work for a part of the period through a contract with the Scowcroft Group.

CNAC Corporation—CNAC Corporation operates the Center for Naval Analysis, a federally funded research and development center, for the Department of the Navy, and has other contracts with the United States Government. I am a Senior Fellow for CNA and provide advisory services to the corporation.

Liquidity Services, Inc.—I am on the board of LSI, which operates an Internet-based surplus property disposal business for both commercial and governmental customers. LSI has contracts with the Department of Defense to dispose of DoD surplus and scrap.

Atlantic Council of the United States—The Atlantic Council is a nonprofit organization which runs numerous programs generally focused on international security issues facing the United States. I am Vice Chairman and on the Executive Committee of the Council and expect to transition to being a Distinguished Fellow while staying on the board. The Council has contracted with the United States Government to conduct various studies or programs..

George Washington University—I am a Capstone Professor at GW's Elliott School of International Affairs and teach a course on "DoD and Winning Modern War."

Pegasus Capital Advisors-- I have been an advisor to Pegasus Capital Advisors, a private equity firm. I do not believe Pegasus has any government contracts or grants, but one of its portfolio companies—ZeroBase, LLC has or has had contracts or grants with the Department of Defense.

Sentia Group—Sentia Group is a software development and consulting services company that provides solutions to the U.S. government and commercial customers. I was, but am no longer, a consultant to the company. I had a subcontract for the period Oct. 1, 2007 to Sept. 30, 2008 for which I was paid $86,000 which I received in Dec. 2008 for work on cyber issues and the book published by the NDU, "Cyberpower and National Security."

In addition, I have received honoraria for speaking at programs run by the National War College and by the intelligence community.
